HARDING HOPES TO VISIT ALASKA IN SUMMER TRIP

Will Leave Washington About June 20 —President Would Avoid All Semblance of Going West As Political Figure

CONSIDERS ALL CURRENT DISCUSSION PREMATURE

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Apr. 10.—President Harding hopes to visit Alaska this summer when he goes to the Pacific coast on a speechmaking trip Although definite arrangements have not been made it was said at the White House today that he probably will be able to leave for the trip about June 20 and reach Alaska about July 15. At the same time, declared the president, he will not make the trip as a political candidate. He asserted he wanted to avoid in every way possible the appearance of going into the west as a political figure. Much of the political discussion now going on, it was intimated by the White House spokesman, is regarded by Harding as very premature. The President is described as unable to understand why a man elevated to the highest office in the gift of the nation cannot serve at least three years of his term without being made the subject of political discussions.

TRIAL OF STUDENT FOR MURDER BEGINS

Warren Middleton Accused of Killing Kentucky University Night Watchman

By Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Apr. 10—The trial of Warren H. Middleton, Paducah, student at the University of Kentucky, charged with murder in connection with the death of Joseph N. Selft, night watchman at the University, began in circuit court today.

Both sides announced ready when the Middleton case was called and selection of a jury began immediately.

EVANGELIST URGES ALL CURCHES WORK TOGETHER

That all churches, regardless of denomination, shoulld all work together for the salvation of a sinful world, was the theme of Rev. O H. Callis' sermon at the First M. E. Church revival last night. A splendid attendance was present, the auditorium being almost entirely filled. The music, under the leadership of Prof. B. V. Grenfell, was excellent.

The subject of the sermon last night was the man who was healed and then commanded to take up his bed and walk. Four men, Rev. Callis said, were required to carry the man and his bed outside Among hundreds of people there usually is only a few who will take the initiative and do the work, he said. If a similar incident should occur now, he said, and the four men belonged to four denominations, each would probably ask the invalid whose church he would join when he were healed. The four would then have a dispute over the answer and would finally walk off and leave the man to die.

"It's not the moonshiners in the hills nor the gamblers in the back alleys who are the real enemies to religion," he declared, "These usually have a great deal of reverence for sacred matters. It is the great surplus crowd who merely sit and look on and criticise that are the real foes to salvation."

The subject for the text tonight will be 'Raising the Dead."

CLEAN UP DRIVE INAUGURATED BY WOMAN'S CLUB

District Governor Speaks on Civic Improvement, Home Agent on Interior Decoration—M. H S. Orchestra Plays

TOM WALLACE OF LOUISVILLE TIME, SPEAKER NEXT TIME

The "Clean Up, Paint Up, Plant Up" campaign was formally launched at the meeting of the Woman's Club at Kentenva Hall yesterday afternoon. There was a good attendance and the program throughout was enjoyable. Addresses were made by Mrs. W. H. Worsham of Corbin, district Woman's Club governor, and Miss Margaret Whittemore of Lexington, home demonstration agent.

"The Woman's Club was once a social expedient; now it is a civic necessity," said Mrs Worsham in beginning. "It is now difficult to plan and carry to successful completion any civic enterprise without the cooperation of the women."

Speaking of the campaign, Mrs. Worsham said: "All women have the instinctive feeling of good housekeepers that a city which is continuously dirty and disorderly reflects a very low standard of community life. Make this a campaign and keep it up as long as may be necessary to do a real job. That's the first essential of a successful community effort in such work. The second essential," she continued, "is the public commitment of the thing cleaned up to the new order of things, that is, by making over an unsightly place into a place of usefulness and beauty."

At the conclusion of Mrs Worsham's talk the High School orchestra very creditably played an Overture and a Waltz by Hayes. This was the first public appearance of the orchestra which is composed of Harold Adams, Raymon Burke, Roger Cecil, Billy Haynes, Henry Sewell, Miss Winnie Pippin, accompanist, and Miss Lillian Seay, director

Miss Margaret Whittemore, was then introduced by Mrs. Helen Forrester, chairman of the Home Economics division. She lectured on the cardinal principles of interior decorating, saying in part:

"When planning a room's furnishings, comfort, unity, pleasing color effect and suitability are to be considered. Each room has, or should have a center around which other furnishings are grouped, whether a table, a bed or a fire place. William Morris inventor of the Morris chair, said 'Do not choose for the house any thing you do not know to be useful and believe to be beautiful'. Furniture should be chosen from the standpoint of 'usableness' and arranged from the standpoint of convenience. In selecting, one should bear in mind the combinations in which furniture will be used In placing it the taste of other persons who will use it should be considered and special attention should be paid to the color scheme and lighting effects."

The Woman's Club, through the civic section, will take an active part in the Clean Up campaign and work through the city, and individual citizens to make it a success

At its next meeting the club will be addressed by Tom Wallace, chief of the editorial staff of the Louisville Times. Mr. Wallace's subject will be "A Vanishing Heritage."

Merchants Meeting Tonight

The Middlesboro Merchants' Association will meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight at the Elks' Home. It is imperative that as many members as possible be present as there are some important matters pending which must be attended to in the next few days.

ENGLISH FARM LABOR STRIKE

Fighting Strenuously Reduction in Wages and Increase in Hours

By Milton Bronner

LONDON, April 9—With their backs against the wall, agricultural laborers in England are fighting strenuously a reduction of six cents per week in their wages and an increase of four hours in their working week.

Ten thousand men either have struck or have been locked out in the premier English farming county of Norfolk, 1000 are out in Suffolk and the trouble threatens tospread throughout the country.

From the standpoint of wages and hours the English farm hand has been at the bottom of the economic scale, although upon his work often depends the very meat and bread and drink that Englishmen use. Only during the war was their lot improved when government wage boards were organized and their wages doubled .

But these boards were done away with after the war and matters of wages and hours were left to agreements between the farmers and their men. The result is there are agreements in only 13 out of 65 farming districts.

In Norfolk the men have been getting six pence an hour and have been working a 50-hour week, making about $6 25 per week. When the farmers offered them 5 1-2 pence an hour for a 54 hour week thousands of them struck. Other thousands were locked out.

Farmers and their town kinfolks have been trying to feed the cattle and perform the other imperious farm chores during the dispute. It is not believed that the fight can last long because the men have no resources to fall back upon

A deputation of members of the farmers' unions and the workers' unions sought government assistance from Prime Minister Bonar Law. R B. Walker, secretary of the Agricultural Union, pointed out that the status of the workers, compared with the cost of things, was lower than before the war. There were counties where men got ten cents an hour.

MUST INTERCHANGE MILEAGE BOOKS

I. C. C. Will Not Reconsider Ruling— Books To Go On Sale May 15

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Apr. 10.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today denied petitions for reconsideration of the recent ruling requiring railroads to sell interchangeable mileage books at reduced rates. The commission offered no reason for the ruling. Books go on sale May 15.

BOGGS ADMITS STATE RECEIVED STREET CONTRACT

Rumor Document Not Sent Discredited —Council Favors Survey For Sidewalks on Dorchester Avenue

TEN MEMBERS ATTEND CITY MEETING LAST NIGHT

A letter from J S Boggs, state highway commissioner, to T. G. Anderson stating that the contract of October 3 1922, between Middlesboro and the state had really been received by the commission, was read at the city council last night M. G. Hubbard, acting mayor, said there had been considerable public comment about the contract and that there were rumors that it had not been sent to the state body.

A letter from A. C. Carr requesting that the city send its engineer to Dorchester avenue to make surveys for sidewalks was brought to the attention of the council and passed favorably upon. Building permits were requested by and granted to J. M Rogan, J W Samms and the Kentucky Utilities company.

A report from R. L. Maddox city back tax attorney, indicated that $585 in back taxes had been collected since they had been put out for collection. The regular reports of the various departments were read and approved and as were also a number of bills.

The question of whether or not the Chapin-Sacks corporation of Pineville, an organization which sells and delivers in Middlesboro, should pay license in this city came up for discussion It was referred to the city attorney who promised to look up the law on the subject and report to the next meeting.

The ordinance regarding parking for the purpose of loading or unloading came up for discussion. The interpretation of it not being entirely clear, it was also referred to the city attorney.

It was one of the best attended council meetings for several months. Ten members, including M. G. Hubbard, who acted as mayor in the absence of Mayor J. H. Keeney, were present

BARKLEY ADVOCATE PERCENTAGE LEVY NOT TONNAGE TAX

Democrat Candidate For Nomination, Here Today, Says His Suggestion Is Tax on Coal Value as It Sells At Mines

MAKES FIGHT TO APPEAL LAWFUL RACE TRACK GAMBLING

Honorable Alben W. Barkley, of Paducah, Democratic candidate for the nomination for governor, was a distinguished visitor in Middlesboro today. He is spending four or five days in the mountains between speaking dates and intends to return later to make a political address in Middlesboro Mr. Barkley spoke in Stanford yesterday and will speak in Richmond Saturday.

Although Mr. Barkley is not making any campaign in the mountains at this time, he is meeting his friends here, both Republican and Democrat, and is discussing campaign issues with them. Speaking in particular today of his views on a coal tax, he said:

"I do not favor a coal tonnage tax, as has been represented, but I do think that the present coal property taxation is a failure and that some reform of it should be made. This view, I am confident is shared by all fair-minded coal operators in this section and in others. The coal tax I have suggested is the percentage one and I advanced it merely because I thought it better than others proposed.

"Admitting the coal property tax a failure," Mr. Barkley continued, "three other methods are proposed. These are: First, the straight tonnage tax, which I consider unfair. The second, an income tax on coal, is equally wrong I have advocated a percentage tax on the value of the coal as it sells at the mines, a tax similar to the one on Pennsylvania anthracite coal and the West Virginia gross sales tax. A coal tax is bound to come in the next few years and this seems the fairest plan.

"All tax experts agree," continued Mr Barkley, "that natural wealth, toward the making of which no labor has gone, is a proper subject for taxation, for when a property like coal is taken from the ground it can never be reproduced. The mountain people, who understand their keen need of better schools and roads, should realize the temporary status of their great mineral wealth and levy a tax to make this wealth, while it lasts, pay for the improvements they are in need of."

Mr. Barkley makes his strongest appeal, perhaps, in his advocation of the repeal of the law legalizing race-track gambling. 'Such a law is not so much vicious in its discrimination amongst kinds of gambling," he said, "as in putting politics into the hands of the group of men who foster these interests and spend so much lobbying that they have been able to sway the party in power, be it Republican or Democrat."

Colmar Resident Dies

George VanBeber, age 49, of Colmar, died at his home there Sunday morning. He is survived by four brothers and four sisters. Funeral services were held yesterday. Interment was in the Johnson cemetery.

FOR A BETTER MIDDLESBORO

Cleaning up suggests rejuvenation and, in turn, reawakening, and such a program is badly needed in Middlesboro. The wide awake and intensive progress that characterized our city a year ago seems to be lost and there is apparently a lack of interest in new accomplishments or new industries here, except as it affects each individual. We need a civic clean up, a civic awakening, and the sooner this comes the better for the city. It is only when the individual citizen stops putting himself first in every instance and develops a true civic sense that the real work begins in bringing about a BIGGER AND BETTER MIDDLESBORO.

EGG SLINGING CONTEST BRINGS POLICE COURT FINES FOR PARTICIPANTS

A novel sport known as egg-throwing has been introduced in Middlesboro but it is not a safe one from a legal standpoint unless the aim of the participants is such that the missiles will reach their mark.

Bill Partin and Charlie Rupert inaugurated such a sport on Nineteenth Street Saturday night. It seems that the boys were not hit but the game was kept up until the front of the laundry as well as two stores had been thoroughly plastered with broken eggs of questionable freshness. As Easter has passed, it appears that the property owners did not approve of these odd decorations so the youths were hailed into police court on charges of disorderly conduct. The judge decided that a fine of $14.25 would be appropriate for the egg-slingers.

POST OFFICE APPROPRIATION INCREASES, EXTRA CLERK ON

The post office has received a small appropriation for an auxiliary clerk and carier service, about one-half of the usual amount, but by means of this added appropriation parcel post delivery was restored in the business section of town yesterday morning. This service had been cut off since last month, awaiting appropriation.

The post office is able, now, too, to use a clerk for letter and daily paper distribution Sunday and for rush hours during the week days, so there is little delay now in mail distribution.

Mail service has increased twenty-five per cent throughout the United States and the failure of Congress to increase appropriations accordingly cramped conditions generally.

HOTELS INDICTED FOR VIOLATING SANITARY REGULATIONS

LOUISVILLE, Apr. 10.—Indictment for failure to comply with the sanitary regulations are planned against sixty Kentucky hotels and restaurants, as a result of the inspection of 4,000 hotels and restaurants, made last year by the State Board of Health, according to Miss Sarah H. Vance, director for the board of the bureau of foods, drugs and hotels.

"Most of the hotels restaurants and bakeries show a disposition to meet every requirement" Miss Vance said yesterday. "This makes possible a vigorous prosecution of those few who keep dirty kitchens and uncanitary surroundings and they will be brought into court unless they immediately adopt the standards of the others."

In addition to the eating places under fire for sanitary reasons a large number of proprietors face indictment for failure to apply for 1923 certificates and there remain at present about 1500 who are delinquent in paying current fees The Board of Health is planning a campaign this spring to bring all delinquents into the courts in order to enforce the regulations and to close those places which menace the health of patrons according to Miss Vance.

COLLECT MONEY ON SALVATION ARMY PLELGES

Collection of money for Salvation army pledges is now in progress and will be finished within a few days, according to C Cuthbert, commandant. About $1200 of the sum scribed during the December drive has not beenpaid, he says, and persons who have not paid will be visited by a Salvation Army representative during the next few days.

REVOLUTION AMONG FEDERAL WORKERS PLAN REVEALED

Washington Police Find Papers in Raid Telling Plans for Revolt, Outlining Immense May Day Demonstrations

PRAISE LENINE AND TROTSKY BUT TOO THEM TOO MILD

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Apr. 10.—Plan for implanting revolutionary doctrines within the government department here were declared by police here today, disclosed in papers seized in raids last night when seven men were arrested. A letter, authorities said, addressed to Edward Irvine, one of the men held, signed William M. Memstone, and dispatched March 22, from the Workers' Party of America, New York, N. Y., told of hopes for converting the government workers to revolution. The letter asserted "Tens of thousands of government workers whose lot becomes annually, if not monthly, more difficult is fruitful soil for our propaganda." Other letters seized contained plans for an immense May Day demonstration. A penciled memoranda, apparently for the purpose of speech making, highly praised Lenine and Trotsky but criticized them for being too mild and lacking vision to go far enough.

LONG BRANCH COAL CO. BECOMES BURCHETT COMPANY

The Long Branch Coal company at Stony Fork formerly owned and operated by Dr. W. K. Evans has been bought by J. W. and W. L. Burnett and G. A. and A. E. Clutts, who have organized it under the name of the Burchet Coal Co., Inc., with J. W. Burnett as president. The other officers are: G. A. Clutts, vice president and general manager; W. L. Burnett, secretary and A. E. Clutts, treasurer. The new company assumed the management yesterday.

The mine has a capacity of eight cars of coal per day. A forty-two inch seam of high grade coal is being worked. J. W. Burnett says that, so far as he knows the same policy as regards labor and general working conditions as have heretofore been followed will be maintained by the new organization. G. A. Clutts was formerly operator of a mine at Pikeville. The Burnett brothers operate a plumbing shop here.

A THOUGHT

The father of the righteous shall greatly rejoice and he that begetteth a wish child shall have joy of him.—Prov. 23:24.

The sacred book of the ancient Persians say: "If you would be holy instruct your children because all the good acts they perform will be imputed to you.—Montesquie.

CLEAN UP OUR CITY

Now that we have embarked upon a campaign of general city beautification, it is but proper that we begin at the very basis and source of civic untidiness by cleaning up the streets back-yards and vacant spots. The help of every individual will be necessary if the success of the enterprise is to be one hundred per cent.

We have progressed to a state of civilization where we voluntarily keep our persons neat and clean. No campaigns or urging are necessary to cause us to do this. Singularly enough, however, the civic mind has not yet reached the point where it will voluntarily keep the open and exposed parts of the city in this condition of cleanliness and sanitation. Hence, the necessity of the spring campaign.

To enumerate all noticeable marks of untidiness would consume an unnecessary amount of time and space but a few will suffice for purposes of comment. Cumberland avenue, our principal business throughfare and the one street that visitors are certain to see and use as a basis for their opinion of the entire city and its inhabitants, is piled up with empty cartons, papers, rubbish and filth along the sidewalks. Proprietors of business places seem to think the proper place to sweep their dirt and rubbish is in the street in front of their establishments. This condition should be speedily remedied and the disposers of such garbage are the logical persons to have it cleaned up.

Vacant lots and places along this same thoroughfare are literally covered with old cans, bottles and rubbish of every description which should likewise be removed by those responsible. If this cannot be readily determined business men and residents of each block should wage a war against this outrage on sightliness and sanitation. Back-yards and many front ones, too, must be thoroughly cleaned up and the garbage properly disposed of. In fair weather they should be swept daily and kept as free from loose dirt and small bits of rubbish as the floors in our homes.

The health authorities of the county and city have already done much toward cleaning up Middlesboro but sanitation is the main object of these officials. If we are to have an ideal city from a physical standpoint we must clean up even better than the board of health requires

It is not a task which requires much consideration, careful planning and great expense. A little time and practically no expense on the part of each citizen will complete the first and most important phase of the clean up campaign. And when we get the city cleaned up, LET'S KEEP IT THAT WAY.

"WHAT PEOPLE KNOW ABOUT THE SOUTH"

Above is the caption of what to many doubtless will prove and amazing story recently published in The Literary Digest. In the beginning is quoted this statement "I would like to go to the south and practice mechanical engineering, but I am afraid they would shoot me," said a serious-minded young man to a traveling representative of an Alabama power company. "They shoot northern people on the slightest provocation down there, don't they?" And reports the southerner who tells the story, this timid one was not only a college man, of one of the greatest engineering schools in the country, but he also looked intelligent. He was assured there was no open season on northerners in the south, but even then seemed to have his doubts. Then the Birmingham News is quoted with reference to the complaint of a New York ice manufacturer that his business was seasonal and the profits too limited (seasonally only, we presume). He spurned the suggestion that he move to Alabama where he could sell ice the year round because "the people down there haven't money enough to buy ice."

Other statements of similar nature are accredited to northerners with reference to the south. Most of them sound like farly tales but they are made on unquestioned and unquestionable authority showing that while admittedly, there may yhe such ignorance in some sections of the south that ignorance is no respector of sections or persons and demonstrating the need of an educational campaign in the north to at least disabuse the minds of our northern friends that life and property are held sacredly inviolate in the south as in the north—and then some.

No section of the United States, no section of the world has made greater advances in everything that makes for progress in education and civilization for advancement politically and industrially in the past two decades than has the South and it is indeed surprising that such monumental ignorance of the kind indicated exists in the north. The story in question carries a table showing a summary of southern progress since 1900. From a property value that yearof $17,919,200,000 an increase was made in the succeeding decade to $26,-800,000,000 which in the succeeding ten years or up to 1920 (Census figures) property valuation had increased by estimation to $70,000,000,000. Can a section making such wonderful material progress be beset by ignorance and intolerance?—Journal and Tribune

AN INTIMATE STORY OF INNERMOST EMOTIONS REVEALED IN PRIVATE LETTERS
Copyright 1925 —NEA Service Inc

LETTER FROM BEATRICE GRIMSHAW TO HER FRIEND, SALLIE ATHERTON

MY DEAR SALLIE:

We have been having all sorts of active pleasures and conditions of mind since I last wrote you.

Just two weeks before the ceremony, the groom-to-be, John Prescott was called back to Albany on business. Simultaneously his best friend arrived. You know that Sydney Carton was his best man.

I thought Carton looked rather worried, especially when Leslie began to rail about "a firm that would bring a man back to his office at the time of his wedding."

"I do not believe," she said, "that I would marry John if I thought he would worship business as the usual successful American man. But my John, I am sure, will not be like this."

It struck me, Sallie, that one of Carton's eyebrows, which, by the way, are a very speakable feautre of his face, took on a very quizzical expression at this. Some way I had an idea that John's best friend was trying to hold the fort for him at a very critical moment.

I presume I ought not say this to anyone, for you and I both know how much havoc the conjectures of a third person will work in the lives of men and women. But this I know, Leslie's father was also somewhat skeptical of the business.

The day before John came home I went with Leslie to her fathers office and although I did not mean to pry in any way, on his desk I caught sight of an open telegram. Honestly, Sallie, I did not intend to read it, but seeing John's name I could not help it for I had become slightly suspicious that there was a strong undercurrent of something sinister to Leslie's happiness in the air

The wire was evidently from some member of John's firm and read:

Joseph Graves Hamilton,
Sharon, Pennsylvania.

Your wric to our John Alden Prescott was opened in this office and duly forwarded to him Prescott is now in Sharon, Pennsylvania, where he will be married on the twenty-second of this month.

ACME ADVERTISING CO.

When Mr. Hamilton came back into the room—he had gone with Leslie to get a check cashed in the outer office (this seemed to be the most important business for the last two weeks)—his eyes rested on the telegram and he quickly folded it and tossed it in an open drawer in his desk.

I saw him look at Leslie and a little worried wrinkle came between his eyes. I would not have though anything about the matter if that evening Mr. Carton, John's best friend had not volunteered the information when someone was saying how sorry he was for John to have to be away from the Karl Whitney costume party: "He brought it on himself." Then he shut up like a clam, closing his lips in a way that made me think he was sorry he spoke.

The morning John Prescott came home we were all down at the train Even Mr. Hamilton left his business to go with us.

Mr. Prescott is certainly a splendid looking young man, and I did not blame Leslie for being proud of him. Leslie's father likes him, too, but I had all the while a feeling that he wanted to get a word in private with his future son-in-law ass oon as possible. I do not know why I am writing these lines to you, Sallie dear, except that of all my friends you and Leslie are the nearest and from the time that we were school girls we have made thorough confidantes of each other.

I have not a thing against John Prescott. On the contrary, he strikes me as being an average man neither better nor worse than those you see about you.

He is very much in love with Leslie and if they begin in the right way I am sure they will be very happy—but (you know dear, you are always saying that I tack that little word "but" on everything I say), well to repeat—but I'm afraid they have begun on wrong premises.

No human being could be as angelic as John imagines Leslie to be and no man was ever so perfect as Leslie thinks John is.

They are calling me, dear. I will continue this some other time.

Affectionately yours,
BEE.

She's sewing on tiny garments
The littlest and softest things;
And there is a light in my true loves eyes
Which only such labor brings;
And I watch her sewing, and in my heart
Is the pride of a dozen kings.

She's sewing on little garments
And as she sews she dreams,
Filled with a vision of joy and hope,
Thrilled with her plans and schemes.
"And the light that was never on sea or land"
Over her features gleams.

She's sewing on little garments
And the day of her trial is near,
Yet all her mood is the mood of joy;
And never a hint of fear;
Oh, wife, may it all go well with you,
My dear, my dear, my dear!

Five-Room Home for $6845

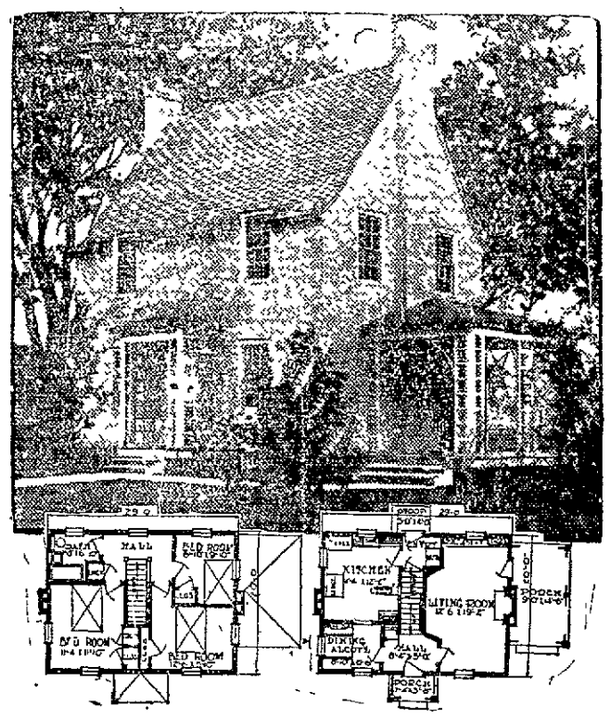

PHOTO AND PLANS, FURNISHED BY THE CURTIS SERVICE BUREAU, CLINTON, IA., FOR A FIVE-ROOM HOME.

Three bedrooms in a five-room house is an unusual feature of this attractive home. This greater housing capacity is possible because of a dining alcove is substituted for the regular dining room.

In other ways, also, this plan demonstrates the best kind of economy. Ordinary materials are used in stock sizes. Even the woodwork is in stock signs that harmonize with the development of the whole building. Stucco is generally considered an economical material for construction, and requires almost no upkeep. Notice the plain outlines of the house and the roof.

These considerations make for weather-tightness and economy

Paneled Wainscot

A vestibule and boxed stair increase the winter comfort and the year round privacy of the house. The long living room occupies the right side of the house, adjoining the porch. An outstanding feature of this room is its paneled wainscot of stained oak. This is a wall treatment that is not exorbitantly expensive and never needs replacement.

The living room cannot help being homelike, even when vacant, for it also has a room-end of bookcases and a window seat, and a homey fireplace, opposite of which is an interesting alcove on the inside wall.

Light Kitchen

There is a large, light kitchen, with windows on two sides to keep it cool and free from odors and for sink, range, dressers and work table. Only a cased opening separates it from the dining alcove, where five people may be seated.

Upstairs, the three corner bedrooms are supplied with clothes closets and also one has a built in tray case, replacing a chiffonier in that room.

TRI-STATE MOTOR CO. ERECTS 4-STORY BRICK BUILDING

A four-story brick building is being erected by the Tri-State Motor company and will be used for storage and display of Star and Durant cars. Construction work is progressing rapidly and it is thought that the building will be completed within six weeks.

Cars will be kept on all four floors of the building, according to E. P. Nicholson, a member of the firm, and the first floor will have an attractive plate glass front. Elevator service will be used The building is twenty feet wide and sixty-feet in length and adjoins the Chero-Cola company on Eighteenth street.

The Tri-State Motor Sales company has built up a splendid business in Middlesboro and its growth has made necessary more adequate housing space for the Star and Durant cars.

A number of cars are now kept in the Service garage, but the space there is entirely too small to meet the present demands of their business.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL NEARS COMPLETION

Finishing Up Interior This Week—Exterior All Finished Some Time

With work going on in various places in the new high school building, the interior is now beginning to assume the semblance of what it will be when completed. The plastering is nearly done and will be finished within a few days. Work of laying hardwood floors began yesterday. This will continue rapidly and should be completed in a few weeks. Acording to latest reports, the building will be entirely finished within six weeks.

The wiring has been done and only the installation of fixtures is needed to complete the lighting arrangements. Door facings have already been made and several of them have been put in. The doors are on hands and may be put up as soon as the facings are on. The plastered walls will be left white just as they are.

The exterior work such as guttering and painting has long been done. Sewer connections are now being made and plumbing fixtures have arrived and may be installed when connections are completed. Even in the unfinished state of the building one is impressed with its features of modern convenience. The large windows furnishing abundant light are also so arranged that excellent ventilation may be afforded.

The school furniture and fixtures have been ordered, according to Supt. J. W. Bradner, and should be here by June 1. These will be installed soon after they have been received and everything will be in readiness for the opening of school there next term.

WORK ON SIDE TRACK FOR NEW LUMBER CO. TO START

Work of building a side-track from the L and N lines to the City Lumber and Supply company wil be begun this week, according to J. W. Allison, manger of the firm. The difficuty which ay in the way of the work has now been satisfactorily settled.

Mr. Allison says that the new firm has filled a number of orders for house patterns during the past week. Practically all of the builders supplies have arrived at their store house and the others are expected soon. A number of sheds for the storage of lumber have been erected on the premises of the company and others will be added as they are needed.

Bars Can't Hold Notorious Criminal In Georgia Prison

NEW YORK, April 10—Gerald Chapman, notorious "million dollar mail robber," who has startled the nation by his two spetacular escapes from custody in Georgia, is hiding near his old New York haunts, say older members of the metropolitan detective force.

They do not believe the criminal, whose daring flights have put him in the position formerly occupied by Roy Gardner, Pacific coast bandit, has fled to the mountains of North Carolina, as Georgia authorities at first believed.

Chapman was sentenced to the federal penitentary at Atlanta, Ga., after he had been convicted of being the leader of the $1,000,000 mail robbery here in 1921.

Early on the morning of March 27 Chapman and Frank Grey, convicted forger, escaped from the penitentiary. They cut the wires supplying electric lights for the prison yard and under cover of darkness scaled the prison wall by means of a rope ladder, supplied by friends outside.

Menaces Citizen

When a citizen refused to aid Chapman in his flight, Chapman forced him at the point of an automatic pistol to accompany him on a

SUES FOR ONE DOLLAR

NEWARK, N. J., April 9—David Sklarey, 11-year-old newsboy, knows big business methods.

He had agreed to deliver some papers for a dealer in town for the consideration of $1.25 per week. For five days he covered his job. But on the sixth he failed.

When David came around to collect his wages, the dealer would not pay him. David tried big business methods. He tried to compromise selling his claim for one dollar.

The employer din't see it and chased him from his shop. David came back again but got little satisfaction. This time the boss' wife turned him down.

There was nothing else he could do. So the boy went to one of the best known lawyers of the city, James J. Furley, counsel for the Essex county Legal Aid Society, had the papers drawn up and forced collection without further difficulty.

Big business methods pay, even in little business, says David.

Care In Selection

Splendid effects can be secured with annual flowers, also those known as perennials which bloom the second season. Scarlet sage or salvia, sweet peas, geraniums, cannas, asters, dahlias, old-fashioned hollyhocks, petunias, annual phlox, hardy phlox, cornflower or bachelor's button and a host of others are adapted for producing immediate or quick results

There are a number of hardy climbers for porches and over arbors, including several varieties of climbing roses, wisteria, clematis and others. Everblooming roses of the bush type are always appropriate but do best when plantd in a separate bed from the shrubbery or the annual plants.

There is considerable range in varieties among these. The local florist can sugest those that are especially adapted to the locality. The great danger lies in the selection of too many different kinds and, of overdoing the planting.

What's worse than the tailor thinking you said "shorter" when what you really said was "longer?"

All's not fair in love. Some are brunettes.

Two optimists are a couple of drunks in a speeding auto singing "Nearer, My God to Thee."

John D. Rockefeller Jr. makes only a million a month, but perhaps he gets his gas at cost.

"WHAT'S LOVE WORTH?" JUDGE IS TO DECIDE

By Roy Gibbons

CHICAGO, April 7—Judges in damage suits are called upon daily to fix the value of a leg, an arm, an ear or an eye when litigants demand compensation for the loss of these members.

And it's not a rare day when a judge is asked to fix the value of a human life—in cases where relatives sue for compensation for the death of one of their kin.

But a Chicago judge today faces a problem more subtle and more entangling than any of these.

He is asked to put a money valuation on love!

This problem has arisen in the suit of Mrs. Edwin Miller No. 1 against Mrs Edwin Miller No. 2.

Mrs. Miller No. 1, a housewife much like the dozen others you'll find in your block, alleges Mrs. Milner N. 2, heiress to millions, so dazzled Milner, a barber, by her wealth that she stole away his love.

$100,000 Suggested

Wife No. 1 seeks compensation for the lost affection—and suggests that $100,000 might be a suitable amount. Here is her story as she sets forth in her complaint:

Milner and Mrs. Milner No. 1 and their daughter, Charlotte, 13, were getting along as well as they could on Milner's salary of $16 a week. They were happy.

Then came prosperity. Milner got an executive job with a big haberdashery concern. There Milner met Harriet Capper, dashing debutante daughter of his employer.

The heiress and Mr. and Mrs. Milner became friends. Frequently they went on jaunts in Miss Capper's luxurious limousine.

Suspects Love

Soon, Mrs. Milner alleges in her complaint, she began to suspect affection was growing between Miss Capper and her husband.

THE TWO MRS. MILNERS, NO. 2 (ABOVE) AND NO. 1 (BELOW)

But she didn't mention that when she sued Milner for divorce shortly afterward. She secured a decree on ground of cruelty and began to receive alimony checks for $20 weekly.

One year and one day later Miss Capper became Mrs. Milner No. 2. And Milner became vice president of the haberdashery establishment.

And now ex-Mrs. Milner comes into court and demands from the present Mrs Milner compensation for the loss of Milner's affections.

The present Mrs. Milner denies all the allegations in theex- wife's complaint.

Judge's Problem

But the judge, sifting the evidence on both sides is confronted by these new and starange questions:

What claim has an ex-wife on her divorced husband?

How much is that husband's affection—the amount he failed to lavish on her before he was allegedly stolen—worth in cash?

Is one husband worth more than another?

How shall a court of law attempt to judge the points on which his purloined value can be assessed?

What is a fair price for a husband's love?

The case will decide all this, lawyers say.

What sort of award would you make if you were the judge?

When you meet your friends at the train stop in

Make THE Backyard Pay

Limited space prevents growing vine crops including cucumbers, melons, squashes and pumpkins to any extent, but the ingenuous gardener can often outwit nature and pratically create space for these crops. Summer squashes, owing to their bush habit of growth take little room Cucumbers and muskmelons may be supported on a trellis. Watermelons and pumpkins require too much room, except possibly one bill of each.

Summer squashes are used while young and tender, the test being to try and skin with that thumbnail and if the skin cannot be punctured easily the squash is old. The squashes are cut in sections and either boiled in a small amount of water or steamed a short time until tender, then mashed, seasoned and served while hot.

Winter squashes, such as Hubbard and Boston Marrow, are desirable wherever soil and climate are suited and garden space will permit their being grown. They mature late and may be stored in a warm, dry room for winter use As a rule winter squashes are baked and served with butter, like sweet potatoes.

Danger In Cucumbers

Of all things grown in the garden cucumbers probably have the least value. The danger from their use, especially by children is great. This, however, frequently comes from stale cucumbers or those picked from a disease of dying vine. Strictly fresh cucumbers used in moderation as an ingredient in salads by grown-ups may be permissible, but by children never.

Muskmelons are one of the most uncertain crops for the small garden. The variety to plant depends upon locality It is best to ask the advice of some local seedsman. Muskmelons can be grown upon a trellis, like cucumbers, but they have to be supported in little slings.

Another vine crop that has attracted wide attention recently under thename of New Guinea butter bean belongs to the gourds. The vine grows rapidly and is useful for covering a trellis over the back door. It mak be cooked and eaten like summer squash, but is inferior in flavor.

zWhen it comes to watermelons, the less said the better, for they really havet no place in the small garden and can usually be purchased cheaper than they can be grown.

Flowers are a mark of refinement and culture regardless of where they appear. The woodland beds of violets, the snowy banks of laurel, the bluebonnet of the plains and a thousand others are nature's expression of refinement.

Flowers about the home, like the clothes worn by the inmates, bespeak the very soul of the people who dwell within. Reasonable simplicity in planting flowers and shrubs about the home is a mark of good breeding and artistic refinement.

Expensive plantings of shrubbery and flowers are not essential, in fact are undesirable in most cases. The finest effects can generally be produced by using plants that are either native to the region or those that may easily be grown from seeds or cuttings.

To Beautify Home

To make home surroundings beautiful, first, secure a smooth, clean carpet of grass on the lawn; second, provide suitable shade trees where the available space is sufficient; third, plant a reasonable variety of shrubbery or other plants around the house so as to have something in bloom the greater part of the time.

Another factor in home adornment is the use of annual and perennial foliage and blooming plaints to fill in the shrubbery and provide harmonious color effects. In the main, the scheme should be one of border effects, the center or main body of the lawn being kept free of any plantings.

The most universal shrubs are berberis, thunbergil, or Thurnberg's barberry, not the common outlaw barberry that causes wheat rust, but a very ornamental dwarf shrub or hedge plan that bears small re dseed pods that remain on the plants all winter; spirea or bridal wreath. Viburnum, Americanum, or high-brush cranberry, cornus alba, which is a dwarf shrub of the doog woo group, and several varieties of dwarf junipers which are evergreen.

Entirely too many shady dealers are making clear profits.

ROBIN SONG

Came to me a haunting strain
This April morn:
And its rhythm bade me greet
A day newborn:
Made me mindful of a change
In my gray world—
Called me forth tos ee the ruddy
Dawn unfurled.

It was wafted skyward from
The maple tree;
And it seemed the very soul
Of spring to me;
No skilled harpist ever struck
A gladder note
Than did this shy stranger in his
Somber coat.

The' my blood was chilled and clogged
By sleet and snow;
Soon this robin's lifted song
Roused hope's warm glow;
And there rose within my heart
A lay to him—
Sending waves of rapture from his Maple limb!

TODAY'S RECIPES

CARAMEL APPLES

Pare and core four apples and cut them into eights. Place in a baking dish and sprinkle with mixture from six tablespoons of brown sugar, two tablespoons of flour and one-fourth teaspoon of cinnamon. Place four tablespoons of butter on top and pour one-half cup of water around the apples. Bake slowly until the apples are soft, basting often with the sirup.

These apples are delicious when served with plain cream and fresh doughnuts or cookies.

Since a Grand Rapids (Mich.) man had 48 diamonds stolen from under his bed it doesn't sleep so well.
